

STAYING INN

Our personal favorite places to unwind from hectic city life.

MAYFLOWER GRACE

A long time favorite for Connecticut and New York residents, the Mayflower Grace still possesses the charm and elegance it has long been known for. The best rooms are those with the private terrace and sprawling views. We love the property in any season, and of course the property is still known for its indulgent spa, which is a must-visit when staying there. This boutique hotel lives up to all the accolades it has received.

THE INN AT LITTLE WASHINGTON

The twenty-four room hotel brings a touch of British and European charm to its guests. Known locally as having the finest restaurant in town, this quaint retreat is the perfect stopping point if you happen to be crossing through Virginia. Chef/owner Patrick O'Connell is the real draw at the property. His elegant kitchen, quirky dining room, coupled with the fabulous food and warm hospitality make dining at the Inn at Little Washington a true delight!

FEARINGTON VILLAGE

The Fearingtown House is a delightful retreat in Pittsboro, North Carolina. It literally has its own village, thus the name, filled with cozy cottages and meticulous culinary handiwork. A weekend spent here will surely recharge your batteries. The food is delectable, and the serene setting makes for a perfect base to explore the area, or do nothing at all.

WEEKAPAUG INN

We visited Weekapaug Inn during the off season. It's always good to get a sense of a property when they're not packed and things slow down a bit. The first thing you'll notice is the gorgeous seascape, New England-style mansions and tranquil surroundings. The inn is perfect for a weekend retreat or a romantic getaway, especially at less than three hours' drive from NYC. They offer a great room product, excellent food, and remarkable service. It is the ideal place to stroll along the beach with your family and pets.

Credit: Ocean House