READERS SAY...

"Hollywood and New York design meets Lowcountry charm at the Spectator. The bar is the best in Charleston right now, and the butlers are wish-granting genies—without coming out of a bottle."

WORDS FROM A WINNER

THE SURREY

No. 1 New York hotel the Surrey is known for its focus on art. We asked Natasha Schlesinger, art expert in residence, to share her favorite art spots in the city.

FRESH TAKES “The Park Avenue Armory has made an effort to be edgier and more engaging, while still respecting the building’s grandeur. They’re bringing in artists who are known by connoisseurs but not necessarily by the general public, such as Martin Creed, who has an immersive piece on view through early August.”

DOWNTOWN DIGS “The Whitney Museum’s new building is breathtaking with its open spaces and high ceilings. The portrait exhibition taking place includes artists like Andy Warhol and Chuck Close, and feels so relevant—it’s about the self in today’s world of social media.”

HIGH SOCIETY “The roof at the Metropolitan Museum of Art has the most fantastical installations, and there’s a bar that serves cocktails. Right now you can see a spooky partial house that British artist Cornelia Parker created, inspired by Hitchcock.”
